Use the KEYMACRO program to add all your personal hotkeys to Windows. The application works by adding your hotkey values to a predefined list, and having the program re-generate a list at startup. This saves you the trouble of having to redefine your hotkeys each time you restart your PC. Run Keymacro, and select what hotkeys you want to add. There is an easy-to-use wizard that will help you define your hotkeys, or you can edit the hotkey list directly. Save your hotkeys to a file, or write them directly to the registry.

KEYMACRO Features: Store hotkey settings in a central location. Easy to create and edit hotkey definitions. Auto-generate hotkey lists at system startup. Compatible with all Windows OS versions. Configuration Export/Import.

Keyboard Customization: Keyboard customization is what many people want to do. If you type your text in Microsoft Word for example, you don't want to use an alphanumeric keyboard to type. You want to use the right keyboard. Usually this means a european keyboard.

Keyboard customization programs can be found by many. In this section I'm going to look at the one that comes with Windows 7. There are many ways to do it, but this is the way that I like to do it. Step One: There is a few ways to do this, but you have to have the knowledge to do it. First you must be in the case of your keyboard. Now, if you know how to change the layout, you're good to go. Step Two: You need to find your keyboard. You'll have to open the control panel. The control panel is on the right side of your screen. If you want, you can open it from the desktop, or you can just right click anywhere in the desktop and open it from there. Windows will look for a keyboard icon on the control panel. If you don't see it, it is not there. If you do see it, click it to open it. Step Three: This is where the magic starts to happen. Type the keyboard model, and the keyboard layout in the search box. There are two buttons on the search box. Type the keyboard model, and the keyboard layout in the search box. Step Four: You will need to know what keyboard you
